Just Transition

Just Transition

- Originated in 1990s from Northern American unions as support programme for workers who lost their jobs due to environmental protection policies
- As climate crisis became more obvious, unions tied Just Transition to climate change
- Today: a deliberate effort to plan for and invest in a transition from e.g. the coal sector to environmentally and socially sustainable jobs and economies

Just Transition

- Guidelines for a just transition developed by UN's International Labour in 2015
- Today: a systematic and economically holistic approach to sustainability
  - Includes measures to reduce the impact of job losses and
  - Includes measures to produce new, green and decent jobs and healthy communities
